DANISH REVOLT GAINS IN TEMPO

Danes and Nazis Reported Deadlocked on Ways To Halt Uprisings.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Aug 27—Denmark's "people's revolt" against German occupation soared to new heights today as the Danish government and Nazi authorities reached a stalemate in their discussion on how to halt the riots and sabotage.

One hundred and twenty persons were reported arrested by Danish police yesterday as they broke up, with the aid of German soldiers, a riot in the Raadhusplacsen in the center of Copenhagen.

An undetermined number of persons were reported injured.

It was the second successive day that large crowds demonstrated in the Raadhuspladsen while sabotage, general strikes and clashes between Danes and German soldiers continued throughout Denmark.

Meanwhile residents of Helsingborg in Sweden reported they had heard terrific explosions across the narrow three-mile stretch of water at Helsingor in Denmark.

Danish and German authorities have been conferring all week on the revolt, which started on Aug

RED ARMIES STRIKE DEEP INTO HEART OF UKRAINE

REDS STAMP OK ON FRENCH RECOGNITION

Soviet Approval Given One of First Allied Decisions Made at Quebec.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug 27—The seal of Soviet Russia's approval was stamped today on one of the first announced diplomatic results of the Quebec conference—formal recognition of the DeGaulle-Giraud committee of national liberation as trustees of French interests.

The Russians apparently went a step farther than President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in welcoming the French committee into the allied fold as the representative of millions of Frenchmen fighting for freedom.

For the announcement from Moscow declared that the group headed by Gen Charles DeGaulle and Gen Henri Giraud would be recognized as the "representative of the state interests of the French republic and as the leader of interests of the French republic and * * * of all French patriots fighting against the Hitlerite tyranny"

The Soviet report, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said that the Russian decision of recognition had been handed to the French committee Aug 26, on a day before the action of the British and United States governments was made public.

Russia Advised

Roosevelt and Churchill, however, in their joint statement issued Aug. 24 said 'full reports of the decisions (at the Quebec conference) so far as they affect the war against Germany and Italy will be furnished to the Soviet government."

The United States and Great Britain accorded the committee limited wartime recognition as administrative agency in French overseas territories which acknowledge its authority, but not as "a government of France or of the French empire"

In Roosevelt's statement, the following limitations were imposed

1. The committee is expected to "function on the principle of collective responsibility of all its members for the active prosecution of the war"

2 'In view of the paramount importance of the common war effort,' the relationship with the committee 'must continue to be subject to the military requirements of the allied commanders"

3 The extent to which the committee may be recognized 'as the body qualified to ensure the administration and defense of French interests" must be 'reserved for consideration in each case as it arises."

4. The statement "does not constitute recognition of a government of France or of the French empire by the government of the United States"

An informed diplomat interpreted these limitations as meaning that the British-American governments merely had confirmed the situation existing in

10 U-Boats Sunk in Battles with U. S. Planes Far at Sea

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug 27—At least 10 German U-boats were sunk or damaged recently in 13 air-sea battles between U S Army air forces B-24 bombers patrolling far out into the ocean, the AAF's anti-submarine command announced today

The anti-submarine command said five submarines were believed to have been sunk and five damaged, and three were forced under water and thereby prevented from attacking nearby Allied shipping

None of these battles has been reported previously, the anti-submarine command said.

B-24's specially equipped for anti-submarine warfare flew as far as 1,000 miles from their home bases to battle the submarines, the command said, and all returned safely, although five of them were subjected to severe anti-aircraft fire from the U-boats.

"Five crew members in one plane were wounded when an explosive shell smashed through the nose," the command's formal statement read. "The same shell shattered flight instruments, the hydraulic system and other vital parts of the aircraft, but the pilot managed a safe landing at his base."

The statement did not say how many planes were involved in the fights and gave no dates.

The announcement told of one battle in which one U-boat was surprised while fully surfaced. The sub crew elected to fight it out on the surface, and men on the sub deck hurriedly manned guns while others ran for the conning tower to escape the aircraft machine-gun fire that was sweeping the deck.

"Diving in to attack in a hail of shell-fire that ripped all sections of the plane," the announcement said, "First Lieutenant Walter S. McDonnell, pilot, of Duluth, Minn, dropped almost to water level before releasing depth charges on the U-boat.

"The attack was carried out despite injury to almost half of the plane crew and damaging of all instruments from an explosion of a U-boat shell in the nose of the aircraft.

"The wounded Bombardier dropped his depth charges in a perfect straddle of the sub which was seen by the waist gunners to break in two in the middle near the conning tower. The rear section of the boat rose 10 to 12 feet out of the water, turned over and

State Quotas Set Up for War Bond Drive

By The Associated Press

The Second War Loan in April, [illegible] banks were permitted to participate to the extent of $5,000,000,000, was oversubscribed by [illegible] above the original $13,000,000,000.

SCHOOLS ASK PUBLIC ADVICE

Renew Appeal for Attendance at Tuesday Meeting; Urge Levy Critics To Come.

The Marion city board of education today renewed its appeal to the general public to attend a mass meeting Tuesday night at 8 30 in Central Junior High school for discussion of the city schools financial problem resulting from recent defeat of a proposed two-mill school levy

Board members said they especially wished to invite again the members of the Marion Real Estate board, which organized opposition to the levy and also stated its views on taxation in an open letter to the board, published in Wednesday's issue of The Star

Solution Sought

School officials said they have no quarrel with the realtors and have no desire to see Tuesday night's meeting develop into one of a controversial nature, but they emphasized that the realtors had devoted virtually all of their letter to reasons for opposing additional taxes at the time without giving the school board any concrete suggestions as to how to meet the problem resulting from defeat of the levy.

One board spokesman said the realtors advised "getting along with what you have" but neglected to make any specific suggestions

"We want them to come to the meeting along with everyone else interested in the welfare of the schools, and let us go over the school situation with them" board members said "After hearing the whole story and getting the picture clearly in mind we hope they will tell us exactly where they would start to cut expenses to keep operating costs within the current income"

Only an unusual situation prevented the financial squeeze from developing earlier, board members said, pointing out that the state had paid $25,148 in overdue funds from the state school foundation funds this year, along with an unusually heavy local collection of delinquent taxes.

Alternatives Stated

As a result of special levy proposals having been defeated on two occasions, the board has two alternatives, a spokesman said

(1) Submit a one-mill levy to operate the schools on the same basis as in 1943, eliminating the proposed salary increases for all employes or

(2) Close the schools for a period some time in 1944, a move that would have the effect of cutting revenues still further because local districts must have 180 days of school to participate fully in state foundation funds and closing the schools for two weeks would result in approximately a $15,000 loss.

BOND SALE PROGRAM SET AT COURTHOUSE

Members of Radio Troupe To Give Entertainment.

The Boone County Jamboree troupe coming here Saturday night for an American Legion benefit show at the Harding Stadium at 8 30 will swing into action two hours before that time in the interest of war bond sales in Marion county, war bond officials announced today.

The entertainers will put on a program at 6 30 at the courthouse to urge purchases of war bonds at the Victory House, and the women's division of the county War Finance committee will be on the job to take sales at the Victory House

Carl E. Danner, H. J. Grigsby and R. T. Mason have been named a committee in charge of arrangements for the courthouse program. If present plans materialize, there will be a parade from the courthouse to the stadium for the Legion show, and orders for bonds will be taken at the stadium as well as at the courthouse.

Judges Puzzled by Mounting Arrests of Women, Children

By BOB BYRD

Two Marion judges today expressed genuine concern over the tremendous increase in recent weeks in the appearances of women and children in court.

And both of them are quick to admit they are baffled [illegible] far as the causes are concerned.

Judge W. Dexter Hazen in municipal court, where [illegible] Marion adults, both men and women, land if they run afoul of the law, estimates [illegible] of women violators in his court in recent weeks [illegible] at least three times the normal volume and what might be considered normal is [illegible] self a far cry from a decade or more ago when the arrest of a woman was something that created a [illegible] sensation.

[illegible] to [illegible] a woman in court," Judge Hazen said. "I've discussed it with many persons, but there doesn't seem to be any one thing you can put your finger on as the cause.

"It [illegible] it seems [illegible] sitting on a powder keg these days. Tempers seem awfully [illegible] probably because everybody [illegible] about the war and [illegible] it has brought [illegible] home.

"There [illegible] more money [illegible] than ever before [illegible] good pay checks and [illegible] money to spend.

Liquor Is a Factor

"A good percentage of the cases [illegible] linked up with intoxication. The [illegible] the increased volume of women workers and their pay envelopes probably is a factor, but I believe a great portion of the cases involve women who have come into Marion to get war jobs. They are not exactly transients but many of them haven't been in Marion very long. That doesn't mean that every Marion newcomer is to be classed categorically as a potential offender, for many fine persons have come to this city in recent months. But the records will bear me out in saying that a considerable part of our increase in criminal court work has come from persons whose permanent homes are elsewhere

"It seems that when women have been drinking and an officer attempts to quiet them or possibly make an arrest, they are much quicker than men to want to fight with the officer. Many women whose offense would simply be intoxication have brought an additional charge of disorderly conduct on themselves by starting a fight with an officer."

Declaring he could offer no remedy for the situation, Judge Hazen said it apparently would continue as long as overindulgence in drinking and the free exercise of quick tempers continued. Admitting that wartime conditions have a tendency to aggravate both of these causes of disturbances, he made a plea for sane living and a general effort

FIGHTING NOW NEAR BATTLE LINES OF 1941

Red Troops Threaten Outposts of Dneiper; Allies Continue Heavy Air Attacks.

By The Associated Press

Russia's armies struck deeper into the heart of the Ukraine toward battle lines of 1941 today, while in western Europe dispatches told of mounting revolt in Nazi-occupied Denmark and a civilian "march on Rome" in beleaguered Italy. The allies continued to carry the air war to Italy and occupied Europe.

Soviet headquarters announced that Russian troops driving on beyond Kharkov had thrown the Germans back three and one-half miles farther west in an offensive toward the Nazis' Dnieper river defenses, and also sent a column racing south in a new flanking maneuver

Field reports indicated that the Red armies were threatening two major outposts on the Dnieper line—the key rail junction at Lozovaya, only 40 miles from Dniepropetrovsk and Poltava, 75 miles from the river

Attacks Repulsed

A front line dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said the enemy concentrated infantry and tanks along the sides of salients which the Russians had driven into their lines and launched a number of stiff counter-attacks

The Red army repulsed the attacks the dispatch said and continued the reckless advance which yesterday covered another three and a half miles.

(A German communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, said Russian troops supported by tanks and planes attacked south and west of Kharkov yesterday but were repulsed with the loss of more than 100 tanks.)

In addition to yesterday's three and a half mile westward advance, which the Russians made in the Kharkov region toward the Nazis' Dnieper river defenses, Soviet forces were disclosed to have struck due south in a new flanking maneuver.

The southward column of Gen. Ivan S. Konevy's Steppe army, pounding toward the key rail junction of Lozovaya, killed some 600 of the enemy, the Soviet communique said. Fighting was reported heavy

Thus, the Steppe army was moving into position to put ever-increasing pressure against the flanks of the German lines reaching eastward into the Donets river basin.

Donets Basin Action

In the Donets basin itself, the Moscow war bulletin said, the southwest army group commanded by Gen Rodion Y. Malinovsky absorbed frequent axis counterattacks south of Izyum and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, killing 2,000 of the enemy.

Yesterday's advances by Gen Konev's troops west of Kharkov wiped out 800 enemy rearguards, routed two battalions and captured several villages

The communique gave no information as to how far the Russians had penetrated the Ukraine west of Kharkov. One big goal is Poltava, 75 miles to the southwest on the railroad leading to the Dnieper, which is another 75 miles beyond.

Poltava already has been bypassed to the north by one Soviet column which captured Zenkov Wednesday on a bee-line drive toward Kiev, Ukraine capital still 170 miles distant.

The Russians announced last night that Gen. Konev, whose troops captured Kharkov Monday, was raised from colonel general to a full general. Likewise, Markian M. Popov, whose troops seized Orel and are now advancing on Bryansk, was elevated to that rank.

Refrigerating Units for Armed Forces Keep Universal Cooler Plant Operations at Capacity

This is another of a series of articles about the part Marion industries are playing in America's home front war effort. It has been approved for publication by the office of censorship in Washington, D. C.

The 800 men and [illegible] of the Universal Cooler Co. [illegible] will tell you quite proudly that they're doing their part to stop the axis dictators—stop them "cold."

They help put the freeze on Hitler, Tojo and [illegible] purposes every time they turn out one of the big refrigerating units [illegible] for every [illegible] of the military services, and [illegible] the [illegible] time [illegible] of the company's standard refrigerating units [illegible] No. 1 item of business on the company's schedule just now.

The workers have gone about their wartime job with a flourish. Their big new production line, which turns out 16 big refrigerating units every eight hours is appropriately called the "road to Tokyo." The line is 330 feet long and every time one of the big units rolls off the line, the workers send it on its way with the hope that it will speed the flow of food and other essentials to the men in the front lines, and thus be a genuine part of the real road to Tokyo.

Make Standard Product

Like many other Marion industries, the Universal Cooler found its standard product in great demand among the armed services when hostilities broke out. Refrigeration is a prerequisite for many of the foods our fighting men need, and when you stop to realize that this food must go into bombers, submarines, and all kinds of warships as well as over the rough terrain of battlefields, you can get a fair picture of how important Universal's job is to the war effort.

The cooling unit that's getting a lion's share of attention at the company's factory here is a big husky outfit about three times the size of an office desk and weighing over 3,000 pounds. All it needs is some gasoline to keep its motor going, and it will refrigerate dozens of cubic feet of storage space anywhere and under almost any imaginable condition. In the tropical deserts where it gets so hot that even the heavy flying suits of air fighters rot without refrigeration, the handling of food is a real problem, and Universal has stacks of pictures from the battlefronts to show that it is playing a vital part in meeting this particular headache.

How Units Are Used

Units that Universal made back in the peacetime years help handle much of the food while it's being shipped in this country. When it goes into a ship, bound for our forces overseas, the chances are good that it will be a Universal unit that will keep it refrigerated on its ocean voyage. When it gets there, a big refrigerated truck equipped with a Universal unit is usually nearby to send it on to the U. S. soldiers overseas. And when it is stored in temporary warehouses near the battle lines, Universal units keep the insulated food storage chambers at the right temperature.

Although food preservation is the biggest contribution the units are making to the war effort, refrigeration units are required for other purposes, such as water cooling, the cooling of liquids that keep machine tools from becoming overheated, and the preservation of military photographic films in areas where the climate would quickly cause films to turn bad. And it actually is necessary in some climates to keep fliers' heavy suits in refrigerated storage to prevent them from spoiling.

Although the manufacture of refrigerating units was the company's business before the war came along, it was necessary to make some changeovers to best fit the factory for its wartime job.

Big Assembly Line

On the "Road to Tokyo" assembly line, automobile construction methods were borrowed. Along this 330-foot line the big units travel slowly on rollers. Sub-assembly lines feed materials into the big line at several points. There are 18 "stations" or stopping points for each unit along the line. When the unit slides off the last roller, it is wrapped in moisture-proof paper, heavily packed and ready for shipment to any part of the world.

On another important job, Universal had to start from "scratch." This is the manufacture of hand-operated water-circulating units to keep machine-guns from overheating. The square, box-like unit, made of metal but not too heavy for one man to carry, is operated by a crank and depends on elbow grease for its power. But with this manually-operated unit, machine-guns can be fired three times faster than without the unit. The company has made thousands of these units, all requiring skilled machine shop work and they are in use in many battle areas. Pictures back from the front show men leaping off invasion barges carrying the Universal-made pumps, lugging them ashore and installing them on machine guns. They also are used aboard ships — every place that light caliber rapid-fire guns are used excepting in planes.

Some Secret Work

In addition the company has done some highly secret government work in connection with bomber parts and manufactures the hydraulic operating mechanism for tank turrets consisting of hydraulic pumps and hydraulic motors for the operation of the turrets on large tanks.

All of this activity not only has increased the number of employes substantially from peacetime levels but has made it necessary for the company to call on subcontractors to handle part of the huge volume of work. Some idea of the increase in activity at the plant is furnished by records showing that the dollar volume of business is now approximately three times larger than the normal peacetime level.

The company has made good showings in war bond purchases, put on an extra drive to get blood donors among the employes, and has lost 143 men and women to the armed forces. About 30 per cent of its employes are women.

A TEACHER'S ANSWER

Editor of The Star: May I, as a teacher in the public schools of Marion, say a few words in defense of our teachers' group as a whole? I feel it is time for the teachers to assert themselves, especially after the tirade against us published in The Marion Star by the Marion Real Estate board.

To say that the teachers were classed by the Real Estate board as a selfish, grasping, unpatriotic group, is putting it mildly! I marvel at their apparent lapse of memory, for it was not many months ago that the teachers were praised for their unselfish patriotic service in so capably handling the immense task of rationing sugar, canned goods, gasoline and kerosene. I might add that it was a donation of time on the part of the teachers with no time and a half pay. How many groups — labor, office, etc., can point to a similar service?

Nor is that the only example of a teacher's working hours extending overtime without any compensation. Any teacher who is interested in the welfare of the children entrusted to her or his care, spends hours in after-school work, preparing lessons struggling with problems of the pupils, making home calls to meet the parents in order to create a better relationship between home and school.

Just how interested would we, as teachers, be in our responsibilities, how long would we be considered capable of handling those responsibilities, if we blithely left our work when we dismissed our pupils?

We punch no time clocks and so our hours of work are neither known nor appreciated. We turn in no time slips in order to receive time and a half for overtime. Yet we are selfish and grasping in the eyes of those to whom it is an advantage to so picture us.

We teachers are expected to keep up in methods of teaching which entails considerable expense in attending summer school frequently. All of which means expense with no money coming in during the summer. How many other groups have a similar problem to solve? Nor would any parents, who were interested in the education of their children be willing to send them to a teacher whose methods were outdated and obsolete.

Because we are paid as public servants and are at the mercy of any group who sets out to defeat any move we may try to make, we are supposed to sit back and meekly accept anything that is handed to us. Opposition we can and have taken, but slander and misrepresentation is a little harder to take.

Because gas rationing and other problems have prevented us from attending summer school and also because we have been told that it was our patriotic duty to enter defense work this summer, many of us have spent our entire summer working in many types of industry. We have enjoyed no paid vacation. However, one thing we have enjoyed for a short time is a pay check that is much larger than those we received in payment for services as school teachers. Who could blame us if we were tempted to stay on in defense work?

Uncle Sam evidently feels that teachers are of enough importance to the war effort that he has made provisions so that no defense work can hold us if we wish to return to teaching.

Yes, I suppose many of us have experienced a temporary urge to remain where pay is higher and yet, in spite of our so-called mercenary nature, we have a yearning to return to our desks whether or not the financial difficulty is settled. For so much of our compensation is of higher value than mere dollars and cents.

No group opposition can take away from us the satisfaction of a task well done, or the supreme happiness that is ours when we realize that lives are molded and characters built by our effort and sincere endeavor.

Time and a half pay? No, we don't ask for it. More salary? If it comes, all right and if not, we'll get along without it.

For out on the battlefields are many fine examples of manhood that we feel we had some part in developing. And we know that we will have an important part in rebuilding America after victory is won.

Not patriotic? In our hearts beat the strains of "America" and the Pledge of Allegiance makes us lift up our heads to face any problem that is ours to solve.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

DESTROY JAP FOE, GENERAL IMPLORES

By The Associated Press

AN ADVANCED ALEUTIANS BASE, Aug. 27—Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt, back from an inspection trip to Attu island—the westernmost point of his command — is determined that "we must carry the war to the Japanese, we must wade in and tear Japan apart, and dynamite and gut her with incendiaries."

Japan must be hit with the full offensive fury of the United Nations—and quickly, the chief of the Army's western defense command emphasized.

"Our future—yours, mine and every other American's — is first upon the Pacific," he declared in an interview. "Japan is our mortal foe."

Bold and determined fighting, General DeWitt said, won for Japan most of her early war objectives.

"Since then," he continued, "she has had a year to pour concrete into her gun positions, which cover all the beach landings. She is today training armies from overrun peoples. She is pillaging the richest empire in the world to make guns and bullets to fight us.

"Today we have only Japan to fight. If we wait for Japan to organize the countries she has overrun we will be fighting the most heavily manpowered nation in the world."

DeWitt contended the Philippines should be recaptured to cut asunder the Japanese supply lines while aid is speeded up to China.

19 German Prisoners Escape Canadian Camp

By The Associated Press

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 27 — Nineteen German prisoners of war escaped last night from the Fort Henry prison camp and early today military district headquarters in Kingston announced that four had been recaptured.

Headquarters said the men escaped between 9 and 9:30 p. m.

A routine check was being made of the prisoners when a report came through from police that a man believed to be an escaped prisoner had been apprehended at Dead Man's bay, a mile and one-half from the camp.

The check was quickly completed and it was discovered 19 were missing.

A second man subsequently was picked up by police in the Dead Man's bay area and two more were captured by a private of the provost corps at the Barriefield army training camp.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The more I read about it, Judge, the more I realize the tactics and requirements of this war are as different from the one I fought in 25 years ago as night is from day."

"Yes, and I can give you an example of how true that is, Fred. In World War I the chief uses of alcohol produced for war purposes were found in smokeless powder, medical supplies and chemical warfare materials. In this war the need for this product is far more vital because it is also used as a fuel to propel torpedoes, to make shatterproof glass for airplane windshields and instrument covers, to make lacquers used in camouflaging equipment and as a base for synthetic rubber needed for tires, gas masks, paratroop equipment and dozens of other things.

"Every time I think of it, Fred, I realize how fortunate we were in having a beverage distilling industry in existence when war broke out...ready and willing to convert 100% to the production of this critically needed war product. I'm mighty sure bootleggers wouldn't have."

U. S. Artillery Cracked Nazis in Sicily, Prisoner Declares

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—After the American smashed the enemy's Troina line in the bitter five-day battle which decided the fate of Sicily, a haggard German prisoner with red-rimmed eyes was trying to explain why the defense was broken.

"We never had any rest," he said. "Your infantry attacked by day and night. They kept coming. We would stop them and then they would come back again."

He closed his eyes, shuddered and went on:

"But the most terrible of all were the guns. The artillery never stopped, and you can only stand so much of that hell."

Two nights before, I had sat on a hilltop before Troina with Sgt. Charles "Chuck" Horner of [illegible]town, Pa., and we listened to the thunder of our guns behind us and the never-ending parade of shells passing overhead and dropping into the enemy's positions.

"We think we're having a tough time," Horner said, shaking his head. "But imagine what the Germans are going through under that barrage."

Artillery Plays Lead Role

From the first shell fired in the battle of Tunisia until the fall of Messina in the conquest of Sicily, American artillery has played a brilliant, consistently spectacular role in the successes of the American troops.

In both the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns the verdict of military men has been that our artillery is as good if not better than the artillery of any other army.

Perhaps the most stirring artillery action in all the Sicilian invasion occurred on July 11, the day after our troops landed and established their beachhead at Gela in the central sector of the American front.

The enemy tried to wipe out the Gela beachhead attacks from three sides. We had only a few tanks ashore at 8 a. m. when the enemy attacked with 100 tanks, including several of the big Mark VI "Tigers."

But we did have a large part of our artillery ashore and in the final analysis the artillery turned the tide of battle after 40 German tanks had driven to within 1,000 yards of the beachhead.

The spirit of the artillerymen is fine, and they make a competitive game out of their gunnery.

Automatic Artillery?

It's an old story that one German prisoner captured said "I have only one request before I'm sent away. I'd like to see the American's automatic artillery."

Of course, the Americans have no automatic artillery, but the boys at the guns work them so rapidly they might as well be automatic.

During the battle of Troina I ran across a gun crew that might be considered typical of all gun crews in the artillery. They called their howitzer "Bleepo III" after a comic page dog.

"But this dog don't wag its tail," said Sgt. William L. Thomas of East Liverpool, O.

Thomas said his crew had set up the gun and with camouflaged nets in a little valley west of Troina they lounged about with their shirts off, their bare backs bronzed by the hot sun of Africa and Sicily. All clustered within 10 yards of the gun, ready at any time to jump to their position at a moment's notice.

"The boys wore out two guns in Tunisia," said Thomas.

They first saw action on George Washington's birthday at 3:30 p. m. in the Thala park where they fired their opening shot at the enemy.

Mission Accomplished

"The Germans were trying to get into Tebessa and they put us into the line to help stop them." Thomas recalled. "We fired five rounds and then they began to retreat."

The telephone rang. Thomas picked it up.

"Fire mission!" he barked.

The men jumped to their feet and took their posts. Commands were snapped. Then the gun roared.

Thomas listened to the observer's report.

The men grabbed the tailplate of the gun and turned it a few inches. The range checked. Then the crew methodically began fir- as the last shot was fired. Thomas took the phone. "Mission accomplished," he told his men. "We were shooting at an enemy strongpoint."

"Did we do any good?"

"Well, the mission was accomplished," Thomas said. "That means we knocked hell out of 'em."

ALLIED LOSSES LOW IN SICILY INVASION

By The Associated Press

COVENTRY, England, Aug. 27—Overhall allied sea losses during the initial invasion voyages and supplying of allied armies in Sicily from July 10 to midnight, Aug. 17 totaled less than 85,000 tons, A. V. Alexander said in an address today.

The first lord of the admiralty disclosed that within 48 hours of the first landing, 80,000 men, 7,000 vehicles, 300 tanks and 700 guns had been put ashore.

Alexander said the British fleet units alone, in this war's most intensive naval support of landing operations, fired more than 20,000 shells with guns ranging from four to 15 inches.

Regarding the relatively light allied losses at sea, he said:

"The Italian and German governments were either completely ignorant of the cost to us in shipping or were so appalled by the truth that they made many inconsistent claims which culminated in the German announcement of Aug. 17, summarizing their claims as 112 merchant ships of 516,830 tons sunk."

Saying that the seaborne invasions of North Africa and Sicily were on a scale believed by many to be utterly impossible, he added, "Literally we have moved tanks and aircraft in their thousands, mechanical vehicles in their hundreds of thousands and men in their millions."

Poll Reveals No Indication of Trend Toward Prohibition

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 27—Because the prohibition movement during the last war culminated in adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment a year after the Armistice, both wets and drys are carefully searching the public opinion horizon today for signs of a new dry wave in this war.

The indications at present, however, are that World War II will differ markedly from World War I in that respect. Judging by Institute surveys from coast to coast there has been no popular trend toward national prohibition during the 20 months of the war since Pearl Harbor.

In fact, a national dry law is supported by fewer voters today than when the war began.

Only approximately one-third of the nation's voters with opinions on the subject favor a return to nationwide prohibition, while the other two-thirds are content to leave matters as they are now.

The country's attitude today, together with the trend since Pearl Harbor, is shown in the following survey results.

"If the question of national prohibition should come up again, would you vote wet, or dry?"

	Dry	Wet
Feb., 1942	36%	64%
Sept., 1942	38	62
Dec., 1942	36	64
Today	34	66

A total of only 8 per cent had no opinion in today's survey.

The decrease in dry sentiment is especially significant in view of the fact that today's survey vote does not embrace the views of the men serving in the armed forces. At the time of the last war, many soldiers bitterly criticized the dry forces for having allegedly put prohibition across in the absence of the young men.

Today, with the young men again absent, the civilian population shows no trend toward the dry viewpoint after nearly two years of war.

Although at least 34 of the 48 states have local prohibition laws affecting some part of the population, what the general public opposes is a national dry law similar to the Eighteenth Amendment.

If a new national law is ever adopted, the women of the country are likely to have more to do with reviving it than the men. All through the years since Repeal, the women have been far more in favor of returning to national prohibition than the men.

In the survey a year ago, for example, only 54 per cent of women voted wet, as compared to 70 per cent of the men. The vote by sexes today is as follows:

	Dry	Wet
Men	27%	73%
Women	41	59

The surveys have likewise found that rural and farm areas are a stronghold of dry sentiment, whereas large cities vote overwhelmingly wet. This is still the case today, as the following table shows:

	Dry	Wet
Farmers	51%	49%
Towns under
10,000	45	55
10,000-100,000	30	70
100,000 and over	19	81

Tabulation by age groups show the older people more ready to accept prohibition than the younger.

MORE MUTTON, LAMB DUE IN SEPTEMBER

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—The war food administration (WFA) announced yesterday September meat quotas calling for more mutton and lamb, but less pork for civilian tables.

The quotas for beef and veal will remain approximately the same as those for August.

WFA said Classes 1 and 2-A slaughterers would be permitted to add 3 per cent of their quarterly quotas to their civilian mutton and lamb deliveries during the month.

Since a quarterly (July-September) quota is 85 per cent of civilian deliveries in the corresponding period of 1941, the 3 per cent increase over the base period will bring September deliveries to about 90 per cent of September, 1941, slaughterings.

Class 2-B slaughterers quotas already have been established at 90 per cent of their September, 1941, slaughter of lamb and mutton.

WFA said Class 1 and 2-A slaughters were given September civilian quotas of 85 per cent of September, 1941 deliveries. While the August quota originally was set at 85 per cent of August, 1941, a subsequent supplemental order permitted deliveries during the month up to approximately 90 per cent. WFA said no additional deliveries of pork would be permitted during September, and that the net effect would be a reduction from August quotas.

The quantity of beef and veal which Class 1 and 2-A slaughterers are permitted to deliver during the period ending Sept. 30 remains at the same level previously established, 85 per cent of their quota bases.

The slaughter quotas for class 2-B slaughterers are 85 per cent of their quota bases for beef, 85 for veal, 90 for lamb and 90 for pork.

(Class 1 slaughterers operate under federal inspection. Class 2-A are those with quota bases of 2,000,000 pounds or more per calendar year who do not operate under federal inspection. Class 2-B are those with quota bases of less than 2,000,000 pounds a year.)

GOLD STOCKS IN SPOTLIGHT

Prices Generally Good at Opening But Turn Sluggish Later.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 — Gold mines and scattered industrials attracted modest buying in today's stock market but speculative and investment indifference still was a handicap for many leaders.

Prices generally were improved at the opening. Dealings then retreated to sluggishness and, near the fourth hour, the direction was somewhat obscure.

On the advancing side was Dome Mines, which went into new high ground for the year; Homestake Mining, Consolidated Edison, Douglas Aircraft, McIntyre Porcupine and American Can. Intermittent declines were posted for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Western Union, Southern Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Woolworth, Anaconda, Kennecott, Texas Co., General Electric and International Harvester.

In the curb support was given Lake Shore, Aluminum of America, Aluminum Ltd., Sunray Oil and American Cyanamid "B".

CHIEF'S IN. When members of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff see his hat on the bookcase in the anteroom of his office somewhere in the South Pacific they know the commander-in-chief of all Allied forces in that area is in.

GOOD OATS DEMAND SENDS PRICES UP

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—A strong demand for oats in the cash market, where prices were the highest in 23 years, imparted firmness to all grain futures today. Profit-taking appeared on the advance and most gains were confined to fractions, with nearby deliveries showing the largest upturn.

The September oats contract at one time sold at the best levels since 1920, but backed down later. Activity was only moderate as many traders preferred the sidelines in view of the fact Marvin Jones, war food administrator, was scheduled to address the new food program on the radio tonight.

[illegible] visit to Russia, in [illegible], would have no immediate [illegible] effect on the [illegible] war, since he was not [illegible] to make any official [illegible] but it formed a remarkable chapter in the history [illegible]. It showed the desire for understanding [illegible], and it opened a [illegible] public pressure on [illegible] create a second front. [illegible] second day in Moscow [illegible] to dinner with Willkie [illegible] a clear impression [illegible] Willkie was in Moscow to get ammunition for a political battle, in case there should be any isolationist or fifth-column sentiment in America for peace before both Germany and Japan were completely defeated. He wanted the United States to stay in the war until the victorious end. He also wanted to promote support for a western European offensive, by killing any suspicion that Russia would lie down and leave us alone, once we were engaged with the Germans.

STALIN and Willkie got along famously. For one reason, they were of the same mind on the most important subject of the day—the second front. For another, although they spoke different languages, Russian and English, they talked them in the same way, frankly. Stalin liked Willkie personally, and Willkie admired Stalin.

They were together for two hours and fifteen minutes, a long time for a Kremlin talk. Molotov and an interpreter were present. Willkie handed a written message from President Roosevelt to Stalin, and received a verbal reply. They talked of Soviet and American industrial production, of Russian desire for more active Allied aid, of victory and a peace where each nation would live according to its likes. Willkie went away, sold on the need for a second front.

He went immediately to the 'first front.' Stopping at the guest-house only long enough for a hasty supper, he drove west that same night, under a pale Russian moon, to the Red army zone near Rzhev.

This trip was the routine one which the Soviets had long since organized. It gave Willkie a chance, however, to talk to some soldiers and peasants. It also gave him a second sleepless night, for after dusk he started the drive back to Moscow.

ON his last day in Moscow, he came to a cocktail party, given by the correspondents in the Associated Press room at the Hotel Metropole, and handed out a statement, summing up his visit.

'I am now convinced we can best help Russia by establishing a real second front in Europe with Great Britain at the earliest possible moment our military leaders will approve,' he said, 'and perhaps some of them need some public prodding. Next summer might be too late.'

That rather ominous statement reflected the Kremlin view. But before Willkie left, on his last night in Moscow, the most revealing light on the Soviet attitude was cast during his dinner at the Kremlin.

That dinner was the most intimate of any offered to an important visitor. Twenty-eight persons attended. At 8 p. m. they walked through the Supreme Soviet council chamber of the Great Palace, their steps echoing through the [illegible] hall and entered the St. Alexander room.

Stalin placed Willkie on his right and Admiral Standley on his left, with an interpreter beside each of them. It started out as a [illegible] meal. It became merrier in the course of twenty-seven toasts. Stalin [illegible] a toast to his guest [illegible] Willkie. Willkie replied with a toast to Stalin and Churchill. Molotov toasted Roosevelt. That [illegible] of formalities. Then the fun began.

Stalin [illegible] the interpreters for translat[illegible] without [illegible] Willkie promptly toasted the interpreters, 'the only ones who are working here tonight.' Stalin drank to their health and remarked that, when they translated that toast, it was the first time they sounded as though they meant what they were saying.

JOSEPH BARNES proposed a toast to foreign correspondents in Russia, and to Soviet journalists, to which Molotov replied [illegible] by drinking to Barnes as a correspondent who had been fair and just in Moscow. Gardner Cowles Jr., who was also with Willkie's party, brought them to their feet with a roar to drink to the average Russian soldier. Then matters took a serious turn.

Commander Paul Pihl, Willkie's naval aide, suggested a toast to air pilots, which was duly drunk. Stalin turned the conversation immediately to Red air force pilots who he said were fighting well, although they knew the Tomahawks they were flying were not so good as Airacobras, and the Hurricanes they were flying were not so good as Spitfires. His tone was severe. He carried it even farther, by asserting a hundred and fifty-two Airacobras, which were to be delivered to Russia, had been been intercepted en route and diverted to the British.

Willkie tried to liven the tone by remarking that Stalin certainly kept his 'eye on the ball.' That took some explanation, through the interpreters, about golf and baseball, before Stalin got the point. Then he agreed, he did keep his eye on the ball.

But a serious charge had been made, even though presented casually. Clark Kerr, the only British guest, had to reply. He said he had long studied Stalin's character, even before coming to Russia from China, and he had admired him, especially for his bluntness. That quality, he said, called for bluntness in reply. The Soviet Union, Great Britain, and the United States were united in a common cause, he pointed out, and if any planes were diverted from Russia, it would only be to further the cause of all three. If such a thing had happened, he concluded, he was sure Stalin knew about it in advance and knew it was for the best. That was the final speech.

'Nothing the British ambassador has said will be taken amiss,' Stalin said, and the guests adjourned to the throne room of St. Andrew where the fun was resumed.

WEARILY, but happily, the guests wended their ways home in the early morning hours. Just before noon of September 27, Willkie flew off for Kuibyshev and Chungking.

There was a serious aftermath to the Willkie visit. He had come as President Roosevelt's representative to study the Russian people and Red army, and to promote friendship between the Russian and American peoples. The way in which he carried out that mission provided some upsets for the American embassy.

During the reception at Spaso House, I had seen Admiral Standley, pounding a corner table until it bounced, delivering what seemed to be an old-fashioned lecture to Willkie. That evening, Willkie, who had been introduced to Molotov by Standley, went — without the ambassador — to see Stalin. They could only be interpreted by an ambassador as interference in his affairs and undermining of his position.

Again, Willkie issued his statement about 'public prodding' without advising the embassy of its contents. It was only after the statement had appeared in the American press that the United States diplomats, accredited to the Soviet government, knew about it. The attitude of the Willkie party may have been that theirs was an unofficial visit, and that they were under no obligations to the embassy. The embassy did not see it that way.

A few days after Willkie left, Admiral Standley also took off for Washington with his military and naval attaches. The ambassador returned late in the year with his personal position strengthened and his attaches promoted to the ranks of brigadier-general and rear-admiral. By then, the period of 'prodding' had passed.

While [illegible] war manufacturing plants receive higher wages, [illegible] workers are struggling [illegible], Bender said, suggesting the government [illegible] change the policies [illegible].

Figures released by the office of [illegible] administration [illegible] the statement [illegible] that the weekly wages of workers in manufacturing [illegible] 29.9 per cent in the period between Jan. 1, 1941 and March 1, 1943 after making allowances for the increased cost of living.

"But real wages of [illegible] manufacturing workers in [illegible] real help declined 2.4 per cent during the same period.

"White collar employes, whose living costs have risen sharply in the period since Pearl Harbor find themselves faced with higher taxes and dwindling incomes at the same time.

"By leaving their positions they have abandoned their status as members of a great independent-minded non-partisan group. If their departure is to be permanent the nation as a whole will have lost an important ingredient of effective public opinion. This new situation poses a question which the executive agencies of the government can not long ignore."

Hope for More Gasoline Dealt Blow in East

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Hopes of the nation's motorists for more gasoline, especially in the east, were dealt a double blow today.

Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies declared the military drain on the supply produced east of the Rocky Mountains was increasing steadily, and offered this deduction:

"As military requirements increase, it is inevitable that there be less gasoline available for civilian consumption. It seems patent to the petroleum administration that the only means whereby those needs can be met in full is to reduce correspondingly the demand on our gasoline stocks at home."

Doing as the Romans Do

IF THE Romans choose to surrender separately, which is the ultimate significance of the open city status sought for their city, acceptance of the surrender becomes a decision for military settlement. In all probability, it will be settled on a basis of doing as the Romans do.

In brief, if their city is taken all the way out of the war, which would mean complete abandonment of the Italian capital for all military purposes, the Allied bomber commands may be expected to respect its new status. Their observations will determine when and if open-city status has been gained. Certainly it is not a matter to be settled by any declaration of intention.

The impact of their capital's surrender on the Italian people would be tremendous. The effect would not be less than abandonment of Berlin, itself. Entirely aside from the other considerations involved, chiefly the preservation of religious edifices, it would mean to Italians that their principal citadel had fallen before the onslaught of the Allies, not because of any desire to save its historic landmarks, which were not targets, but because of inability to defend the city as a whole from the long, strong arm of Allied air power.

Marion's Gideons

A GIDEON society has been organized in Marion and a movement to enroll members is under way. There ought to be great numbers of men in the community responding to the opportunity of having their names on the membership list.

The Gideons are a nationwide organization engaged primarily in distribution of Bibles to places where Bibles are needed, and of course it's not difficult to find such places, for certainly that need applies to any location where there are human beings. And never was the need greater than it is in these troubled days.

The Gideons are not showy or spectacular in carrying on their work. But quietly and efficiently they perform service to humanity that is far reaching and of inestimable value.

We are glad that a branch of this great altruistic service agency has been started in Marion county and hope it will grow into membership that will number at least in the hundreds.

Shocked Into Action

MURDER committed by a Cleveland degenerate may shock Ohio into doing something to confine at least a part of the psychopathic cases now at liberty and a menace to every community.

Any police chief, any sheriff and any probate or juvenile judge can furnish a list of persons mentally and morally capable of such a crime who are roaming unrestrained because there is no place in which they may be confined.

Insane asylums, all of them overcrowded, can take none but the worst cases, those which cannot be handled at home. The degenerates who are a worse menace to the public are unconfined and the state and nation are stunned from time to time by their hideous crimes.

Official records show that there are more than 10,000 persons at large in Ohio who are known to be dangerously feeble minded. Until provision is made for keeping them in custody the blood of the crimes they commit is on the hands of the state of Ohio. The Cleveland case brings a statewide demand for action.

War News Makes Itself

FAILURE of the Quebec conference to make news and the almost peevish disappointment on that score suggests that too much was expected.

In wartime, news is action. The bombing of Berlin, one of the week's high spots, was big news when it happened, but only speculation when it was imminent. The things planned at Quebec, it may be imagined, will be big news when they happen, too.

The truth is, the scale of news value is badly out of balance right now, because big news is big relative to the size of other events competing for attention. The Quebec conference—the mere fact of the conference—would have been big news in its own right a few years ago, yet now it no longer is enough for the political and military leaders of two great nations to get together. The public would like to know what they said and, being unable to find out, feels disappointed.

Perhaps what these conferences need, newswise, is a midget to climb into Mr. Churchill's lap so the news-hungry public will know at least one thing happened to enliven the occasion.

So They Say—

If there still are Germans who love freedom, let them show their feelings by their actions. Mere words after they lose the war will not be enough.—OWI Director Elmer Davis in broadcast to Europe.

The tom-toms of the next presidential campaign ought not to be allowed to drown out the successful battle music from the war fronts. —Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

News Behind the News

Quebec Conference "Over-Sold" to Press; Its Plans Reach Far Into Future.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 — The [illegible] conference [illegible] up [illegible] some- [illegible]

The [illegible] being [illegible]

The [illegible] Roosevelt and Churchill [illegible] then could not [illegible] up to its [illegible] at first. The [illegible] of Quebec [illegible] largely for Canadian [illegible] reasons, for both [illegible] Churchill [illegible] the help they could [illegible] Canadian Premier MacKenzie King, recovering from the [illegible] of the Socialist advance in the Ontario elections and [illegible] by the local [illegible].

Canada is supposed to have invited 175 American newsmen, through the office of war information, but Washington apparently did not know [illegible] the desire for publicity at first, and kept the matter [illegible] a secret here that only about 30 went up in the first batch. This defect was corrected later, and probably more than 150 were finally gathered in, but 100 were finally gathered in, but interviewing themselves and even the lamp posts. In their dismay, they started calling the conference a bust.

Plan Far In Advance

But a more fundamental reason why the conference announcements fell short is that Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill are planning months in advance. They are not arranging "next steps," but the step after the next.

The Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns were planned as far back as Casablanca. Also, the next steps which will be unfurled to the public no doubt were planned before Quebec (which may explain the absence of mention of Italian possibilities from Quebec announcements and statements.

Thus also, when the authorities speak of a coming campaign in the Pacific, they could well be looking forward to the final moving of the British and American air and sea fleets into the Pacific for the kill, after European necessities are over. Neither our comments nor complaints therefore can be founded on solid basis, as all require information beyond our knowledge.

Welles vs. Hull

Plenty of dirt was piled in the corner behind the publicized estrangement of Under Secretary of State Welles and his superior, Mr. Hull. If it were all sifted through, however, it would be the same quality as the top layer. The men simply are opposite personalities and could not possibly work as a team. Personal matters brought the end.

Many other reasons were publicly ascribed when the news first was published. It was said the southern Democrats were driving the only remaining liberal out of our foreign office front, that Welles' going was a recoil to Russia, and that it had similarly big political and foreign connotations. One report suggested that a Republican senator was involved in driving Welles out.

The shadow is greater than the substance in all these considerations.

Trying for Hull's Job?

Far more important than any of them is the belief all Washington reporters have had for months that Mr. Welles was trying to get Mr. Hull's job and that, in the scheming by friends on both sides, an impossible situation had been created at the top of the state department. If for no other reason than this, either Mr. Welles or Mr. Hull had to go. The departure of Hull at a time like this when the President needs the support of the non-radicals in the Democratic party, would have been disastrous from the White House viewpoint.

This personal event, coupled with the ascendency of the Democratic ex-judges (Byrnes, Vinson and Jones) and the almost complete eclipse of Vice President Wallace, has caused an impression here that Mr. Roosevelt is reforming his front entirely on more conservative grounds for the coming fourth term campaign. Personally, I will believe it when I see it displayed in definite action.

Advisors have risen and fallen continually at the top here without any material change of front. The old Roosevelt personal advisors, Hopkins, Frankfurter, Rosenman (and sub-advisor Ben Cohen) still remain as far front in the picture today as formerly.

What we have seen so far done is merely a surface switch of personalities, not fundamental theories of government.

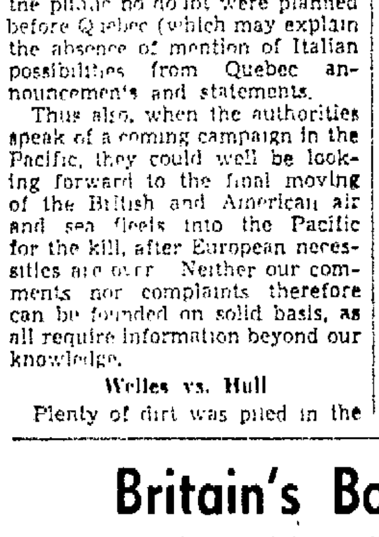
Britain's Bomber Boss

"So Bloody Inhuman" He's Loved by All.



ARTHUR T. HARRIS

* * *

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON—A squadron leader who had served under Arthur Travers Harris was asked how subordinates liked the blunt man who now is chief of the RAF Bomber Command.

"Oh, we all loved him. He's so bloody inhuman," the officer replied.

And it's likely that "Bert" Harris appreciated that strange compliment and accepted it in the way it was meant.

Although he wields ruthlessly a weapon that undoubtedly has sowed more death and destruction inside an enemy's lines than any force ever has in any war, Air Chief Marshal Harris is no more bloodthirsty than the average professional soldiers.

Devoted To Job

But he is "inhuman" in his fierce devotion to his job and in his deep impatience with sham, clumsiness or soft words about that job.

The 51-year-old, up-from-the-ranks disciple of bombing as a war winner once said: "We can work like hell with the Americans."

He can and does, but he works like hell with anyone and those around him who don't work like that don't remain there long. His office day is a mere 10 hours but on nights when the Lancasters and their mighty mates are out on a big job—and that's plenty often—he sits at his home and keeps in almost constant contact with the main operations room by phone.

He almost never goes to bed until the planes return around dawn and he has preliminary reports on their success.

"Rudest" Man In RAF

Sometimes known as "the rudest man in the RAF," this stocky, sandy-haired flier doesn't particularly mind such descriptions. He is interested almost solely in his job and devil take the amenities and the personalities. As he has said himself "I have employed my worst enemies and sacked my best friends."

Competent at almost any level—he has qualified as captain or first pilot in every type of aircraft the RAF ever has had—he still doesn't try to do everything himself. He encourages all suggestions, and makes himself readily accessible. But if anyone wastes his time with an obviously foolish suggestion the air marshal's rough and ready tongue is likely to make him sorry he ever had the idea.

Chief of the Bomber Command since February, 1942, Harris first caught the public eye in June of that year when the first 1,000 bomber attack was made on Cologne. Since then he has become the leading exponent of bombing as a means to win wars.

Bombing Favored

Presumably he's sticking to his contention that if he could send 1,000 bombers a night over Germany for two or three months the reich would have to surrender, but realized that there still is quite a way to go.

"Germany will provide a most interesting initial experiment. Japan will provide the confirmation," he says.

He prefers American cigarets and his public statements are filled with slangy, Americanesque punch. Like the congratulations he sent Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker after the first Flying Fortress raid on Europe last summer:

"Yankee Doodle certainly went to town and can stick yet another feather in his cap."

Women Build Tires

AKRON—Under pressure of the manpower shortage, women have started to build tires in Akron.

The work, once thought too difficult for women, is being performed at the B. F. Goodrich plant.

The company has 100 women working on three shifts. The heaviest work they have, officials said, is removing the tire from the drum on which it is built and tossing it up on the hook of the conveyor system that carries it away. They are paid the same rates as men.

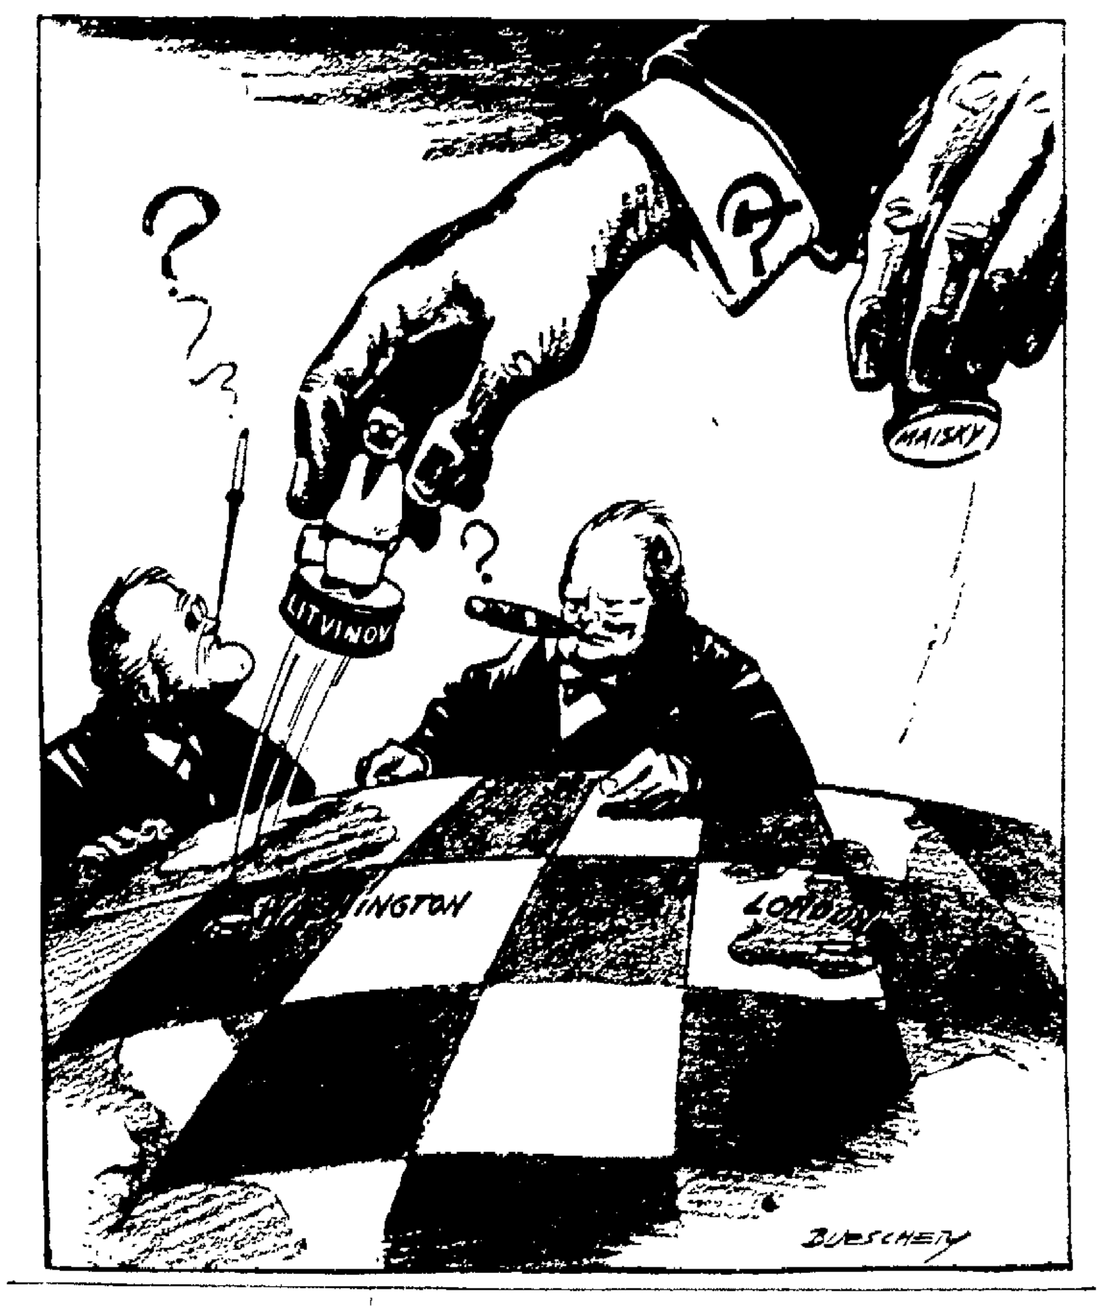
SOMETHING MORE THAN A PAWN



From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, Aug. 27, 1933.

At the Ohio Evangelical conference in Bucyrus it was voted to discontinue Grace church of Marion. Rev. H. E. Williamson of Oakland church and Rev. Irvin Kauffman of Greenwood church were transferred to other Ohio churches. Rev. Karl W. Patow of the Prospect Street M. E. church was transferred to the Detroit M. E. conference at the Central German conference in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Lawrence Musgrave, 25, of Forest and her sister, Miss Martha Hagenmaier, 17, of Upper Sandusky, were killed when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a train at Kirby. The sisters were enroute to church.

Mrs. Mary Henrietta Stouffer died at her home on North State street.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Detwiler, 81, died at her home on Bennett street.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hoberman of the Bucyrus pike entertained at a family dinner in honor of Mrs. Hoberman's sister-in-law, Mrs. Ella Lutz of Montgomery, Ala.

Misses Rosanna and Kathryn Garceau, Mary Rita Murphy, Mary Axe, Dorothy Grundy, Helen Hessberger and Mary Jane Rea left for Rye Beach to spend a week. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. R. J. Garceau and Mrs. Harry Hessberger.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Forest O. Ganson of Sheridan road.

Epworth church was filled nearly to capacity for the night service when friends of Rev. G. G. Canfield of the First Church of the Brethren gathered to hear his farewell sermon in Marion. After preaching at the union service, Rev. Canfield and his family were to leave the following day for Plymouth, Ind., where Rev. Canfield had accepted a pastorate.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Aug. 27, 1923.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania bluntly warned the coal miners of his state that the public would not stand for a September strike, tentatively being arranged by the union to force their demands for union recognition and wage increases.

L. M. Vaughn, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, returned from a meeting of commercial organization secretaries in Chicago.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stevens of Fies avenue.

Camp Wistagoman, the Y. M. C. A. camp at Hepburn, closed for the season after a group of young men between the ages of 18 and 21 finished a two-week session. They were in charge of Roy Wagner, boys' secretary of the Y.

Miss Clara Leffler of South State street returned from Los Angeles. While in California she took a six months' course at the University of Southern California.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richards of west of Morral.

"My Friend the Devil," billed as a motion picture that showed how "the Devil lurks and laughs," was featured at the Orpheum theater. The Marion was showing "Only 38," featuring May McAvoy, Lois Wilson, Elliott Dexter and George Fawcett, and the Oakland was showing Thomas Meighan in "The Bachelor Daddy."

No Secret

By The Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Workers at a nearby war project were talking too much off the job, which had secret implications. Probers felt around among the workers to see who was talking and who wasn't. The investigator eased up to an old man sawing boards.

"What are you making?" he asked the laborer.

"Makin' $1.25 an hour," came the answer, the sawing never ceasing.

No. 1 Postwar Need: Housing

It Will Be Industry's Big Outlet and Source of Employment.

BY JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Post-War planning is so full of trial balloons, it could well explode in our face any minute now.

For the most part, industrial plans are going to be long delayed by the change-over from wartime to peacetime tooling. The automobile industry, for example already has served notice that the tear-drop models are well in the future and that manufacturers will pick up just about where they left off. If you are flight-minded, you will be traveling a long time in the air in remodeled Army and Navy transport planes before you'll get a glimpse of the interior of tomorrow's strato-liner.

There is one industry, however, that is ready and waiting for the peace. It's home building.

Almost all industrial surveyors agree that when war ends, a wave of home buying and building will start sweeping the land.

1,500,000 A Year

These industrial engineers estimate that the post-war demands for new homes will amount to something like 1,500,000 a year—more than twice the 650,000-a-year prewar requirements — and that this demand will last for at least ten years.

Here is one industry that needs no elaborate planning. The tools of the trade already are available: hammers, saws, trowels, shovels, pliers, screwdrivers, wrenches and pipe-benders are all over the place and good for most of those ten years.

Bricks, stone mortar, and plaster can be had in almost any community at a moment's notice. In spite of certain troubles that the forest industries have had in meeting wartime demands (due to shortages of wartime labor, transportation and other things), they estimate that there are at least one trillion, 500 billion board feet of saw-timber size in our forests just waiting to be used. That doesn't include timber earmarked for use as fence posts, railroad ties, pulp, shingles, fuel, etc.

Out of that forest backlog, the industry claims, we could build approximately three homes for every family in the nation.

To Provide Employment

That brings us down to the probability that post-war housing will provide the greatest single source of employment immediately after this war. I haven't been able to obtain exact estimates on the number to be employed, but when you think in terms of 1,500,000 homes a year, with all the nails, bolts, electrical supplies, bathroom fixtures, plumbing, hardware, new furnishings, and whatnot that will go into them, you can find little reason for prospects of unemployment. Some say that the whole of our armed forces could be used in constructing postwar homes.

As for the home of tomorrow, don't look for any freakish designs. Building industry leaders here say they will be strictly ultilitarian, with all the modern conveniences, considerable prefabrication, one and two-car garages attached, possibly movable interior walls. The average house will be smaller, but it will be a private, resident-owned dwelling, detached from its neighbor.

Foreign Names

The war, high-lighting the confused and varied spellings of names of many foreign cities, may help indirectly to bring the uniformity long recommended by official and semi-official bodies in the United States. Such uniformity would be helpful, of course, to postoffices throughout the world. The tendency is to use the official spelling of the nation concerned rather than the English equivalent.

The Board of Geographical Names, a section of the Department of the Interior, favors addressing foreign mail with the official spelling of the country of destination. For examples, Vienna in its homeland is properly Wien; Munich, Munchen; Moscow, Moskva; Salonika, Thessalonike; Copenhagen, Kobenhavn; Warsaw, Warszawa; Belgrade, Beograd; and Bucharest, Bucuresti.

The National Georgraphic Society was a pioneer and still actively promotes the use of official foreign spellings for foreign place names.

MOUNTBATTEN PLANS SQUEEZE ON JAPAN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 — The eastern end of a British-American-Chinese squeeze play against Japan — product of the Quebec war strategy conference—is being outline here at meetings between Lord Louis Mountbatten, new allied supreme commander in southeast Asia, and American military chiefs.

The itinery of Britain's famed commando chief will take him through a round of staff conferences with army and war department officials today, and, after a trip to London, eventually to Chungking to pilot the western phase of the war in Asia.

A four-fold objective appeared to dominate the developing pattern for the allied effort in Asia: reopen the Burma road, unshackle southern Asiatic sea ports from enemy control, and, ultimately, dominate the China sea and greatly augment allied air power in China itself.

With the whole program obviously involving amphibious operations Mountbatten conferred yesterday with navy officials.

It became known that an as yet unidentified officer already has been chosen by the commando leader as his deputy chief of staff and that the chief of staff will be British.

Already short of manpower, the Germans are reported to be hesitating about taking over full control as they have in other occupied countries, because it would require more troops.

Eyewitnesses of an anti-Nazi outbreak in Helsingor Aug 25 reported that German troops raced about the town in motorcycles armed with machine guns and beat participants over their heads with rifle butts to break up a demonstration in front of the German consulate.

On the same night in Copenhagen, the eyewitnesses said, German soldiers drove a tank into a crowded market place to break up a riot.

Norman Armour Seen as Successor to Welles

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Norman Armour, ambassador to Buenos Aires and a career diplomat, appears to have the inside track in the field of possible successors to Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, when and if Welles' resignation is announced.

Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state, has strong congressional backing, associates said today, but a man with more diplomatic experience is expected to be the ultimate choice.

A possibility arose, meanwhile, that Welles, despite his rift with Secretary Hull, might accept an assignment as President Roosevelt's personal representative in South America, with headquarters at Rio De Janeiro. It has been suggested also that he might go to Moscow on a special mission.

Report Pilotless Plane Crashes in Denmark

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27 — The newspaper Aftonbladet reported today in a dispatch from Malmoe that a pilotless German plane had crashed on the Danish island of Bornholm in the Baltic sea and said there were indications that the craft was radio-controlled.

Investigators, the dispatch said, could find no place in the plane for a pilot.

The dispatch caused immediate speculation here as to whether the plane might be one of the secret weapons about which the Germans have been boasting.

Bornholm is located about 25 miles off the southernmost tip of Sweden, directly across the Baltic from Peenemuende, site of a big German experimental laboratory which the RAF bomber on Aug 17.

Swedish - German Relations Strained To Dangerous Point

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Something [illegible] to [illegible] —was the [illegible] government of Sweden [illegible] German mine-sweepers [illegible] Swedish [illegible] off Denmark [illegible] Aug. 2[illegible]

At length [illegible] already started an investigation. Should that inquiry establish that the Huns have [illegible] one of their [illegible] of ruthlessness [illegible] the explosive event [illegible] Sweden into the war on the side of the allies.

That's [illegible] a prediction [illegible] merely [illegible] tendency which has been pushing a reluctant Sweden nearer and nearer to the brink of the European maelstrom recently. This [illegible] situations. One wonders in particular what the effect would be on Stockholm if the western allies should stage an invasion of western Europe in the immediate future. It certainly would put the Swedes in a much stronger position.

Tension Increases

Relations between the Scandinavian country and her [illegible] neighbor have been increasingly strained for four months. For the past three months the Swedes have been standing at arms, ready for action if forced from their chosen position of neutrality.

Now comes this fresh sensation in which the German warships are said to have fired from a range of fifty yards on the little boats. The fishing craft were flying their country's flag and had the Swedish blue and gold insignia painted trustingly on their sides. Stockholm regards this as the worst in a series of incidents involving Germany since the sinking of the Swedish submarine Ulven on April 16, with her crew of thirty-four.

The fact that the Nazis have been jittery in the expectation of an allied invasion of Denmark scarcely could salve Swedish honor or indignation. That's an excuse something like the one the Boche gave after sending the Ulven to the bottom. The Hitlerites said they mistook the Ulven for an enemy craft—but they didn't make the tale stick in Stockholm.

It was last March 24 that Sir Alfred Knox, member of the British parliament, told the house of commons that Sweden's attitude since the beginning of the war had been "definitely pro - axis." Whether that represented the position exactly is something for history to decide. Perhaps it might be more accurate to say that some of Sweden's actions had been pro-axis, thereby making way for a delicate differentiation. We should remember that Sweden was right under Hitler's big guns, and in constant danger of invasion by the Boche. Sweden's position was mighty difficult.

Allied Stand Clear

Anyway, the allied governments quietly but clearly made it known that those who are not for us are against us. This didn't improve Sweden's uncomfortable position, but it did produce signs that Stockholm was giving it thoughtful consideration.

A little later there began a long series of incidents for which the Nazis were responsible, and there has been a distinct cooling of Swedish-German relations. Stockholm's attitude has stiffened as the axis has sunk into the slough of defeat, and as the prospects of an allied invasion of western Europe have grown.

Swedish protests to Berlin increased, and by the end of April the Swedes were talking tough to the Nazis. At this time it was made known that Sweden's armed forces were ready for eventualities. By mid-July observers stated that the Scandinavian country was at the peak of military preparedness and it was said she could mobilize at least 600,000 well trained men. Simultaneously the press was conducting a campaign against the continued transportation of German troops to and from Norway across Sweden.

Very recently the repressive measures of Quisling in Norway have stirred a bitter reaction in Sweden. In Stockholm there have been anti-Nazi demonstrations. The Swedish government revoked the privilege of transporting Nazi troops across the country.

That brings us up to the sinking of the little fishing boats. Swedish-German relations are doing a tight-rope act over Niagara.

Announcement Made by President Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 — President Roosevelt [illegible] announced [illegible] American recognition of the French Committee of National Liberation, "subject to the military requirements of the Allied commanders."

In a formal statement coincident with the announcement also of British and Canadian recognition of the committee headed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Henri Giraud as co-chairmen, the president said:

"The government of the United States takes note with sympathy of the desire of the committee to be regarded as the body qualified to ensure the administration and defense of French interests. The extent to which it may be possible to give effect to this desire must, however, be reserved for consideration in each case as it arises.

"On these understandings, the government of the United States recognizes the French Committee of National Liberation as administering those French overseas territories which acknowledge its authority.

"This statement does not constitute recognition of a government of France or of the French Empire.

"It does not constitute recognition of the French Committee of Liberation as functioning within specific limitations during the war. Later on the people of France, in a free and untrammeled manner, will proceed in due course to select their own government and their own officials to administer it."

Recognition Caps Long Negotiations

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Allied recognition of the French committee of national liberation as the temporary government of France capped a long series of negotiations, generally delayed by the question of whether Frenchmen could bury their political differences and give whole-hearted support to any government.

The French not under axis domination were divided into separate factions until as recently as July 31 when the fighting forces of Generals Charles De Gaulle and Henri Giraud were cemented under the military leadership of Giraud and political directorship of De Gaulle.

It was perhaps this factional division more than anything else which delayed the allied recognition for which Frenchmen had clamored for many months.

Recognition Withheld

Neither the Fighting French movement of General De Gaulle nor the North African faction of Giraud were ever recognized by the United States although both Great Britain and the Soviet Union had declared the De Gaullist group to be the only representative of France.

The United States continued diplomatic relations with the Vichy regime of Marshal Philippe Petain, until chief of Government Pierre Laval handed the American representative his passports Nov. 8, 1942, following our invasion of the French North African [illegible]

Created as a result of the Franco-German armistice of June, 1940, the fighting French movement came into being with De Gaulle's establishment in Brazzaville, French equatorial Africa, Oct. 27, 1940, of a Council of Defense of the Empire. This was carried forward with the formation of a French national committee in London a little less than a year later.

One by one, various portions of the French empire came under the committee's rule, often through British help: first the French equatorial African colonies and then the city-states in India followed by the Pacific colonies.

SWEDES INVESTIGATE SINKINGS BY NAZIS

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27 — The Swedish government announced today that two Swedish fishing boats were sunk without warning by two German mine sweepers during an attack on five boats in international waters off the northeast coast of Denmark on Aug. 25.

A communique said an investigation has been launched by the navy and that the Swedish legation in Berlin had been asked to learn from the Germans whether any of the 12 men reported to have been on the sunken boats were rescued.

While the government awaited the results of the investigation before launching a protest to Germany, it took a critical view of the sinking and the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter editorially termed it "a brutal attack."

Recalling that the Germans had promised repeatedly to instruct their armed forces to respect Swedish neutrality, the paper said, "it is the general opinion that the government, after a short discussion with the German government, cannot just cross over this incident and pass on."

Mike Ryba, the Red Sox' jack of all trades, officiated in the victory over the Indians with seven-hit hurling. His teammates made only four safeties over Mike Naymick and Pete Center, but were given aid and comfort by four Cleveland errors.

The Senators stopped the Browns in the first game 9-7 for Early Wynn's 15th pitching triumph, although he had help from Dutch Leonard to get the final out.

Jake Early and Stan Spence hit homers for the Senators and George McQuinn and Frank Hayes did the same for St. Louis. Then in the nightcap McQuinn hit another roundtripper and the Browns won 4-3 when Milo Candini forced in three runs with walks while the bases were loaded.

Today's schedule calls for no games in the daytime, but has two in each league on tap for tonight.

MIKE NAYMECK KEEPS HARD LUCK TITLE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 — Big Mike Naymick, the American league's tallest baseball player, still holds his title as the Cleveland Indian hard luck hurler as the Tribe moves into Comiskey park to open its final western trek tonight. The Indians and White Sox are deadlocked in third place.

Naymick, six foot, eight-inch rookie from the Eastern league, allowed only four hits in 14 innings against the Boston Red Sox during the eight-game series which ended yesterday with a Red Sox triumph, 4 to 1.

After yielding a single safety in six innings of a 13-chapter Cleveland defeat Sunday, Naymick started against Mike Ryba yesterday, gave up only three hits in eight innings but was charged with the defeat.

Four Boston double plays and four Cleveland misplays contributed to the defeat, coupled with Indian inability to utilize to advantage the seven hits collected off Ryba.

Pete Center relieved Naymick in the ninth and allowed only one hit. Cleveland's only tally came in the final frame, on a base on balls, Roy Cullenbine's single and an infield out by Jeff Heath.

Reds and Cards To Draw Biggest Night Crowd

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 27 — Although the point at issue is scarcely debatable, the Cincinnati Reds and the St Louis Cardinals are likely to play tonight before the biggest night crowd of the season.

The advance sale indicates the previous record of 16,000 will be topped by folks hoping against hope that the second-place Reds can somehow whittle down the Cards' 12½-game lead in time to make the National league race interesting.

Bucky Walters for the Reds and Morton Cooper for the Cards are the pitchers.

Assuming that they pass their physical examinations, pitcher Johnny Vander Meer and outfielder Bert Haas are due to leave the Reds for the services before long. Both report to Fort Thomas, Ky., tomorrow for induction.

Talk of Post Season Games Heard As Means of Continuing Revival of Softball Interest

In order to make a true revival of Marion softball a reality, a majority of fans believe some type of post-season all-star game should be worked out by the softball commission or other groups of persons interested in a bright future for the diamond sport.

The 1943 softball season, which may close in a [illegible] tonight for organized teams, has been a [illegible] and [illegible] has seen a marked improvement in the interest in the game shown by the local sport-minded populace. However, interest still is not at the high pitch of ten years ago, when Marionites by the hundreds thronged to the city's four ball diamonds.

That added stimulant which would raise softball up to the high plane of a decade back might be found in a special post-season game or series of games.

Already, a proposal for such a contest has been mapped out by several softballers, who were in their prime when the game was going great guns. According to their planning, the game would be played between an old-timers' outfit, composed of inactive diamond performers over 30, and an all-star lineup made up of outstanding players, who participated in one of the three city leagues this year. All proceeds from this game would go to the Marion Canteen.

Undoubtedly many fans would be in favor of such a post-season tilt and probably would give their active support by attending it. However, would an old-timers' game prove as great a drawing card and thus as great a motivating force for local softball as the following post-season affair, the idea for which only this week popped forth from the productive minds of some softball big wigs?

A four-star attraction between the city champion, which would be either Universal Cooler or Epworth, and an all-star team composed of leading players from the other ten city loop squads.

Both suggested games should get considerable attention from fans, players and officials if softball is to enjoy a good and possibly great season next year. Both games could very well be played, perhaps as a double header, which would give Marion fans two contests for the price of one.

Members of the softball commission would like to get the fans' reaction on post-season games. These reactions should be voiced as soon as possible for soon cold weather will force softball players to lay away their bats for another season.

One of the big problems of an aftermath game this season would be to what organization or organizations the gate receipts would go. Some groups have put forth the suggestion that the money be "earmarked" for a fund to be used in the installation of lights at Lincoln park. The poles are up at the north side field and with money collected from a post-season charity contest, Lincoln's lamps may again be affording light for nocturnal games next season.

T. H. McKenney, director of the recently completed district softball tournament, has expressed his fondest thanks to the following persons and groups of persons, whose assistance in staging the tourney he terms as "indispensable": U. A. Nystrom, secretary of the city park board, for the use of Lincoln park; C. C. Caldwell, safety-service director, for "providing the facilities for cutting the grass and weeds in the ball park"; Ray Donaugh and Marvin Mewhorter, members of the city softball commission, for doing "a splendid job of securing applications from the various teams"; Charles Reid and Leland Kelly who "worked hard for improving the field"; Robert Blake and Marshal Browne, tournament scorekeepers, who also "put in many hours of hard labor to prepare the diamond"; Vic Dorris, city recreation supervisor, who also "put in many hours of hard labor on the ball diamond"; Umpires Guy Storer, Hose Williams, [illegible] Rice and Lovell Cook for "the splendid work they did", and "to the local softball fans for attending the various games."

• • •

Universal Cooler softball players, who about two weeks ago won the Industrial league championship, will be rewarded with a trip to Cincinnati Sunday to witness the doubleheader between the St Louis Cardinals and the Reds. All expenses will be paid by the Cooler Corp. Sixteen members are expected to make the trip. If the Cooler outfit ascends the city throne, as well, who knows what rich reward is in store for them.

Victor Dorris, who in addition to serving as recreation supervisor during the summer, also happens to be Harding High school football coach, has announced three gridders, who were invited out to practice two weeks ago, have been dropped or have quit from the squad. This cuts to 37 the number of boys now on the Harding roster. The name of Bob Virden, who has made himself more than known in softball this summer, has been added to the Harding grid squad. Bob will be a senior next year.

However, most Harding supporters fear more than Virden will be needed before the Presidents can chalk up another seven won and one lost record this season. Many Prexy footballers and team followers already feel the hot breath of the Mansfield Tiger. The Tigers are expected to furnish Hardingites with the toughest opening game opposition in President history Sept. 17.

• • •

In the 1943 edition of Street and Smith's "Football Pictorial Year Book" may be found the picture of a young man, whom all loyal Harding High fans will recognize without taking a second look. He is John Roberts, who captained the 1939 Harding football team from the quarterback spot. He is being groomed to assume an important role in the Dartmouth College machine this year in a backfield post. John is at the present draft-free, being a Navy V-7 student. The description under Roberts' picture states, "John Roberts, a Green veteran, now in V-7, is a back who hopes to hold his own on the big Dartmouth squad."

Scouts on Hand To Watch Legion Teams

By The Associated Press

MILES CITY, Mont., Aug. 27—Big league scouts scuffed the alkali dust of this eastern Montana cow town today to cull the talent of American Legion junior baseball kids beginning their own world series.

Springfield, O., and Whiteville, N. C., square away in the first game this afternoon.

The tourney is a two-defeat elimination affair.

Originally the classic was arranged for four teams, but was broadened last night to make room for both Springfield and Whiteville which had been scheduled to play for their sectional title.

The Minneapolis Richfelds and Flint, Mich., were matched in the other first-round contest, to be played tonight. New Orleans, which got a first-round bye, will meet the Whiteville-Springfield loser tomorrow morning.

Dozen "Old Men" Steal Show at Big Baseball Jamboree

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug 27 — There were still 35,000 lumps in 35,000 throats around the village today—all because a dozen old men walked out on a ball field.

These weren't just any 12 old gaffers, mind you. Nor was it just any old baseball clambake at the Polo Grounds yesterday. It was an $800,000,000 baseball show, put on by the Journal-American to sell war bonds. And the more-than-35,000 who showed up had Uncle Sam's cash registers really ringing for the war effort.

It was quite a party, too, what with Broadway and baseball, Hollywood and the hall of fame, and—especially—Babe and the "boys."

But Babe and the "boys" stole the show—stole it from the top "name" comedians, dance bands, movie actors and singers in show business who did their stuff during the four-hour fuss. And they stole it, too, from the Giant-Yankee-Dodger All-Stars who turned in a 5-2 win over the Army's New Cumberland (Pa.) team.

The Babe, naturally, was George Herman Ruth, the man with a bat. The Babe and Walter Johnson were two of the ancient dozen who had pop time turn the hour-glass back to give today's fan a look at what probably was the greatest collection of baseball "ivory" ever put on display in one park. Seven of the dozen are in the hall of fame.

Ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker introduced each of the diamond's diamonds. Around the infield were George Sisler, Eddie Collins and bow-legged Honus Wagner from the hall of fame, and Frankie the Fordham Flash Frisch, who'll probably get there one of these days. Tris Speaker was flanked in the outer pastures by Duffy Lewis of the Boston Red Sox's mighty Lewis - Speaker - Hooper outfield, and Red Murray, who once saved a game for the New York Giants by catching a fly during a lightning storm. C. McGillicuddy, known to the trade as Connie Mack, "managed" the cast. Bill Klem, the old arbitrator in person "umpired," and Roger Bresnahan did the catching.

It didn't matter that in fielding some of the Babe's "practice shots" Murray fell down, Speaker was practically decapitated and Collins was all but carried into right field by a line drive. The folks had a look at 'em, and the Babe finally parked one. That was the icing on the cake.

Indianapolis Within Half Game of Red Birds

By The Associated Press

Indianapolis climbed to within a half game of second place Columbus last night by beating Kansas City, 7-2, while weather postponed all other American association contests.

Taking three of four games in their series with the Blues, the Indians came from behind to score three clinching runs in the fifth inning. Bob Logan, whose wildness at the start gave Kansas City a pair of runs, steadied down thereafter to get credit for the win.

GRAND AMERICAN TITLE ON BLOCK AT VANDALIA TODAY

Most Coveted Prize in Trap-Shooting Draws 800 Entrants.

By The Associated Press

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 27 — The most coveted prize in trapshooting, the Grand American handicap championship, goes on the block today, over the 100-target route at the 44th annual tournament with a field of more than 800 competitors.

Short of its $10,000 guaranteed purse because of the war, the current payoff will be based on the number of entrants.

James F. Holderman, Morris, Ill., farmer, was on hand to defend the crown he won last year but tradition gave him no chance to repeat. In the 44 years of the roaring Grand, not one marksman has been able to capture the title twice.

For the first time in Grand American history, the handicap class will not be the tournament finale. The 50-pair doubles competition held over from yesterday because the weather will be staged following the No. 1 attraction with Rudy Etchen, shooting instructor at Great Lakes naval base, as defending champion.

James A. Sabata, 29-year-old farmer from David City, Neb., won the handicap's dress rehearsal shoot yesterday, breaking 98 of 100 clays. Paul Butterbough of Lancaster was second with 97 of 100.

Miss "Skipper" Winski of Wellsburg, W. Va., took the women's preliminary title in a shootoff with Mrs. Cal Ray of Coquille, Ore.

Cooler After Softball Titl in Epworth Game Tor

Marion probably will have a new softball champ in about 8:00 tonight if the fielding and pitching of the Epworth Methodists clicks sky-high like they did against Universal Cooler Monday night.

Then again, most fans wouldn't be surprised to see the Coolerites bow to the Epworths in the fourth Little World Series contest at Lincoln park tonight, if John Clark's charges perform as expertly as they did against Coca-Cola's now eliminated Commercial league champs Wednesday night.

After Epworth had topped Coca-Cola for the first time last Friday night 8 to 7, Universal Cooler scored six unearned runs in one inning to trounce the Methodists, 9 to 2, Monday night.

If John Clark uses Bob Lashey on the mound in tonight's possible championship game, the Methodists undoubtedly will stand a much better chance against the Icers, Industrial leag wearers Lashey shut-o to 0 on two hits Wedne and in doing so, appea the best of the three worth has used to the the series.

UNIVERSAL COOLER IN TIFFIN TOURNEY

Universal Cooler, city pennant contender, is scheduled to meet the Tiffin Routh Packers, runners-up in the recent district tournament, in a first round game of the Tiffin invitational softball tourney at 9 o'clock Tuesday night. Camp Millard's crack soldier outfit of Bucyrus will clash with Clyde.

Four other northwestern Ohio teams are participating. Tiffin National Machinery and Fremont, who will meet at 7:30 Wednesday night; and Fort Clinton and the Fostoria Screw Works, district champs, at 9 Wednesday night.

Semi-finals are scheduled to be played Sept. 7 and the final contest Sept. 9.

Bill Darnell, Cooler manager, said today he has acquired the services of Johnny Schnelker, ace Galion All-Star pitcher, for the tournament game with Tiffin. Schnelker was bested by Ken Altman, Routh Packer hurler, in a semi-final district game here last Saturday, 1 to 0.

Two Men Jailed Following Fight

Frank Pickett, 18, of 262 Senate street and Willie Levins, 34, of 250 Senate street, who, according to police, engaged in a fight yesterday afternoon of the type where apparently "everything goes," were arrested about 5:50 p. m. yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct. The two Negroes were taken to city prison, pending appearance in municipal court.

Police who received the report of the fight late yesterday afternoon arrived at the scene after the scuffle had been broken up. They reported that a few minutes later when cruising around the west side, they found Levins at Senate and Silver streets with a half of a brick in his hand. They said he commented that he was looking for Pickett but was likely to hit "anyone who comes along" with the brick.

A few minutes after Levins had been arrested, police apprehended Pickett, whom Levins identified as the other party in the altercation. Police said he told them Pickett had struck him over the head with a pop bottle in the course of the fight.

Perez of Havana, Cuba, shooting from 22 yards, and George Gillett, veteran Sturtevant, Wis., gunner, shooting from 19 yards, paced early finishers in the 44th Grand American handicap today with scores of 97 of 100. Perez, first Cuban ever to threaten in the big classic, and Gillett were among the first 150 finishers. Henry T. Bullock of Vineland, N. J., slipped in behind the leaders with 96 when he broke only 23 of the last 25.

Perez is a lumberman while Gillett operates an oil station.

Marion Group To Go To Columbus Defense Show

Some 25 Marion Civilian Defense officials are expected to witness "Action Overhead," a mammoth Civilian Defense show to be held in the Ohio State university stadium in Columbus tonight. The special bus chartered to take local officials is scheduled to leave at 6.37.

The show, which is being staged by the State Civilian Defense council, will be highlighted by the bombing of a miniature city by airplanes. This part of the program is expected to "look like the real thing." The miniature city has been designed to simulate as nearly as possible an actual city, fully equipped for defense against bombing.

Also included in the show will be demonstrations of practically every type of bomb.

To Whom It May Concern

It is a real pleasure for me to recommend Col. F. E. Williams to anyone in need of an auctioneer. He graduated with honors from the Reppert School of Auctioneering, Livestock Judging and Pedigree Study.

He has the natural talents, pleasing personality, good voice, knows values, and how to conduct an auction sale. He is an untiring worker and absolutely honest. He knows how to please both the buyer and seller and will prove a valuable auctioneer in any sale.

Any favors shown him will be appreciated by myself and a large number of friends.

LAND VALUES UP IN UNION COUNTY

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 26—Value of farm land in Union county has increased about 28 per cent in the last two years, according to the annual report of County Recorder Lawrence Rhodes for the period ending June 30. The report also reveals that mortgages are being paid off at a rapid rate.

With sheriff sales, partition and administrators' sales being taken as the basis, the average sale price of farm land in the county for the year ending June 30 was $60.70 as compared to $46.77 in 1941. Since these are forced sales they are not generally considered to be representative of land values as a whole.

For the first time in many years, the value of mortgages canceled exceeded that of those recorded. Mortgages on real estate during the last year which were canceled aggregated $1,438,172.23 while the value of those recorded during the year was $1,094,185.93. In 1942 the comparison was, canceled, $318,998.90, recorded, $1,771,591.60; 1941, canceled, $982,634.72, recorded, $1,382,685.26. Acres sold during the three periods was: 1943, 33,115.80 acres, 1942, 38,998.93 acres; 1941, 24,299.09 acres.

UNION CO. SERGEANT GETS RIDE ON MEMPHIS BELLE

Edward Croft Comes Home from West on Furlough.

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 27 — First Sergeant Edward Croft of Marysville arrived here Thursday on a short furlough after being privileged to travel most of the distance from his base at Maines Air Field, Calif., in the "Memphis Belle," the famous Flying Fortress which is touring the country after setting up a record for combat duty on the European front.

The crew of the "Memphis Belle" was intact throughout the journey from California to Patterson Field and Sgt. Croft was the only passenger from his base to Memphis, Tenn. Sgt. Croft got his "lift" when he asked Major Morgan, commander of the famous fortress, to take him along to Patterson field which the local man noticed was the destination of the Fortress. The "Memphis Belle" had stopped at Sgt. Croft's army air freight station for gasoline.

The "Memphis Belle" spent two days in coming to Patterson field but the actual flying time was 13 hours, Sgt. Croft stated.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"AYE," Dicky quoted, "there's the rub! I can imagine Olga's reaction to that revelation about the chloroform and the other drugs."

"After all," my father said slowly, "Ruth Hayes had no chance to do more than grasp Olina's arm. As far as the Ventners know, she only wanted to have the girl come into her room while she counted the money. The discovery you and Dicky made about the bag took place after Olina has left, and even Ruth herself does not know that you found the drugs. And the surmise that she intended to use them on Olina is only just that—a conjecture. We have no proof. So," he concluded, "why excite Olina and alarm her parents unnecessarily?"

Used Different Verbs

I made the mental note, as I was sure both Katharine and Dicky did also, that he had used different verbs to describe the probable reaction on Olina and on her parents of the story of the chloroform. Olina would feel no fear, only the elation of a peril missed. But her mother and her step-father would in all probability suffer agonies of fear, even though the peril had passed by.

"Why, indeed?" Dicky echoed, and Katharine and I nodded silent agreement.

"But," he went on, "they will want to hear, as I am sure you will also, about what happened to Ruth Hayes when she left the hotel with the money and again after she had come back after her bag and had checked out. Richard, suppose you telephone their apartment and ask them if they can come down here for a little while. We do not wish to have Margaret in evidence in the corridors until she leaves the hotel this afternoon for Meredith's office."

"Glad to!" Dicky said and very promptly relayed my father's invitation which was more like a command.

"They'll be over in five minutes," he reported, and it really was under that when their knock came upon the door.

"I'm really using you to save time," my father said, smiling, when the three—Philip, Olga and Olina—were seated. "I want to bring all of you here up to date about Ruth Hayes, and I haven't time to tell the story twice. So I have asked you to come here and hear it."

Olga flashed a brilliant smile at him.

"What is that phrase I hear so much over here?" she queried. "'We are all ears?' Well, that describes us!"

"I'll try to fill them," my father said, smiling back at her. Then he leaned back in his chair and put his finger tips together.

Spencer Tells His Story

"I was fortunate in having a number of most efficient trailers on the job," he said, "for as soon as she made the first trip from the Van Sittart with her bag in her hand, she pursued an elusive and tortuous course,—most ingenious. They lost her at one point, regained the trail at another, and then, of course, we were fairly sure of her destination — the obscure apartment which Stephen Redfield keeps as a refuge when he has something off the record to stage.

"And," he went on, with patent satisfaction in his success, "there is where we finally trailed her. Redfield was in his hide-out, and from a hole in the ceiling—we have rented the apartment over his — our man saw the Hayes woman transfer the money to Redfield.

"He also," my father went on with a chuckle, "heard the Wilderness Woman stage a demand for a ten per cent commission for getting the money. As you can imagine, that didn't appeal to our handsome actor, and he refused, finally threatening to tell Milner if she persisted in her demand. They had a heated quarrel, and finally Redfield broke down and gave her a thousand which Ruth took, glowering."

"Oh!" Olina exclaimed. "And that is George's money they are tossing around like that!"

Won't Do It Long

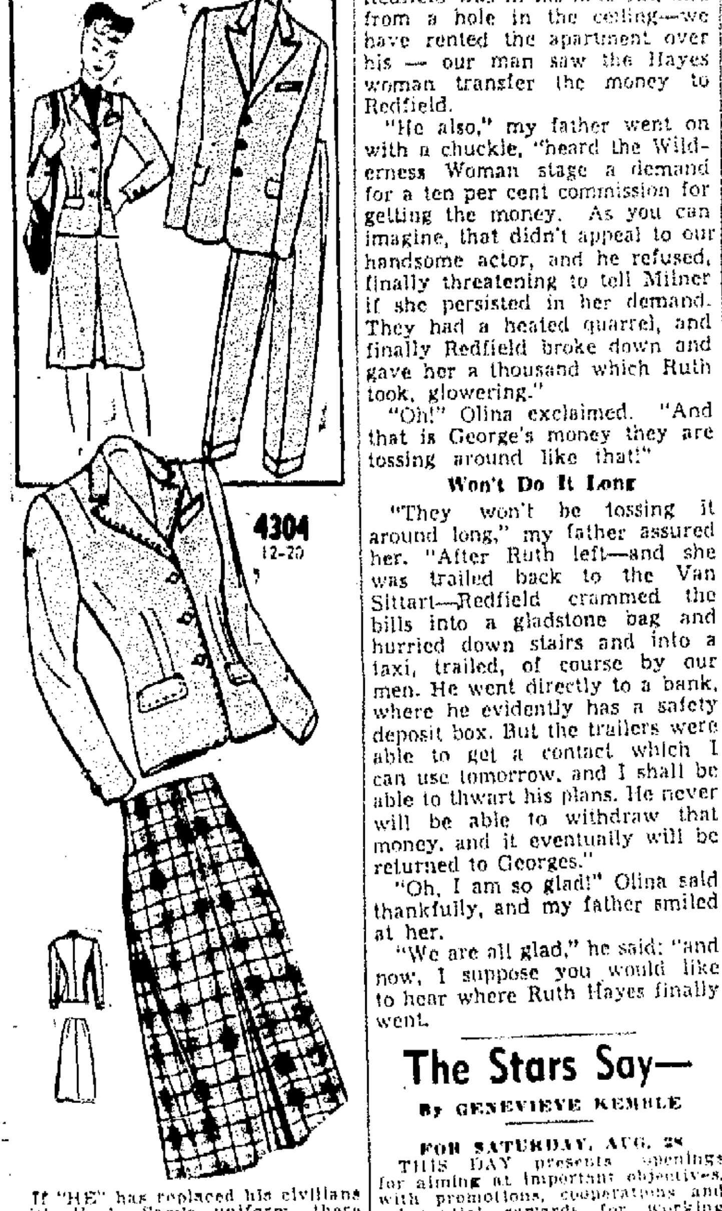
"They won't be tossing it around long," my father assured her. "After Ruth left—and she was trailed back to the Van Sittart—Redfield crammed the bills into a gladstone bag and hurried down stairs and into a taxi, trailed, of course by our men. He went directly to a bank, where he evidently has a safety deposit box. But the trailers were able to get a contact which I can use tomorrow, and I shall be able to thwart his plans. He never will be able to withdraw that money, and it eventually will be returned to Georges."

"Oh, I am so glad!" Olina said thankfully, and my father smiled at her.

"We are all glad," he said; "and now, I suppose you would like to hear where Ruth Hayes finally went.

Daily Pattern For Home Use

By ANNE ADAMS



If "HE" has replaced his civilians with Uncle Sam's uniform, there must be one suit you could "borrow" to make yourself a new Fall outfit. We are sure "HE" wouldn't mind. Pattern 4304 includes a step-by-step sew chart that shows exactly how to cut this smart suit from a man's suit. Yes, yardages are given for new fabric, but the thrill would not be there. Comes only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20.

Growth

GROWTH, as we pointed out yesterday, is one of the most mysterious functions of the body. Obviously it is a necessary function. We cannot forever remain the size of babies, even if we mature in other ways, because the baby would have to reproduce a smaller baby and so on until in a few generations we would be microscopic. So Nature provides for growth up to the age of maturity. But why isn't the growth steady and gradual?

The human animal grows very rapidly from birth to six months—increases size twice. Then it grows steadily but slowly for two years, so again its size is twice that of six months. Then its growth slows so as to be almost imperceptible—only a ten or fifteen per cent increase in eight or nine years.

The child of ten is about four times the size of the new born baby. Then all of a sudden at about the age of twelve growth is speeded up so that in the next five or six years the size of the individual is ten times that at birth. And then the whole darn thing stops dead and never starts again. Why? Nobody on earth has the faintest idea.

Averages of Height

If you want averages of growth in height, they can be furnished. But if, as a parent, you are going to apply this to the growth of your own children a warning is necessary. These are only averages, and an average is made by computing ten thousand individuals. Your child is as likely to fall right on the dot as one is to ten thousand.

But here are the figures. Males and females are about the same up to thirteen years. It is more accurate to do it in millimeters. (A millimeter is one-thousandth of a meter, which is 39½ inches long.)

At 8 months—613
1 year—761
2 years—874
3 years—962
4 years—1039 (a little over a yard)
5 years—1109
6 years—1172
7 years—1238
8 years—1301
9 years—1359
10 years—1413
11 years—1465
12 years—1510
13 years—1567 (a little over a yard and a half)

Several General Deviations

But in recording a large number, of which this is the average, there are found deviations from the average which fall into four groups. There is first a group whose weight is heavier than the average and height about the average or somewhat below. Then there is a taller group—always exceeding the average height, constituting about 33 per cent of the whole. This individual is slender and his weight not much more than the average.

Then there is the small type, consistently at every age under the average height, constituting about 27 per cent of the entire group. The actual average constitutes about 37 per cent of the boys and 42 per cent of the girls. These differences mean quite different potential activities for the different groups in endurance, tendency to disease and even temperament, a subject we will discuss tomorrow.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. M. P.: If a person has osteomyelitis in her youth would it be likely to recur later on in life? Would her offspring be likely to be affected by it?

Answer: If the osteomyelitis has been thoroughly eradicated in youth, it will not recur. There is absolutely and positively no danger of giving it to the offspring.
